

The Greene County Comprehensive Transportation Plan (CTP) Committee met on Tuesday, November 2, 2010 at 2:00 p.m. in the Greene County Office Complex.

The meeting was attended by Don Davenport (Greene County manager), Chris Roberson (Greene County assistant manager), Mike Lovett (Greene County Transportation Department), Bennie Heath (Greene County Commissioner), Robert E. Taylor (Mayor, town of Hookerton), Ronald Turner (Walstonburg town board), Dana Hill (Snow Hill town administrator), Patrick Flanagan (Eastern Carolina Rural Planning Organization) and NCDOT representatives Betty Ann Caldwell, Scott Walston, Lauren Nichols and Brendan Merithew.

Meeting participants introduced themselves.

Chris Roberson gave an update on committee member status. Committee members were listed as Don Davenport, Chris Roberson, Ronald Turner (Ronnie Rouse serving as alternate for Mr. Turner), Mike Lovett, Bennie Heath, Robert E. Taylor (April Baker serving as alternate for Mayor Taylor) and Dana Hill. Mr. Roberson indicated that three additional committee seats had been advertised.

A regular meeting for the Greene County CTP Committee meeting was discussed and the group decided to go forward with meetings on the first Wednesday of each month at 1:30 p.m. in the Greene County Office Complex.

Brendan Merithew, Greene County CTP project engineer, gave a presentation on the Comprehensive Transportation Plan process.

The group evaluated maps of Greene County and discussed initial areas of concern relating to current and potential transportation problems. Emphasis was placed on centers of employment and other locations that attract vehicle traffic, including schools, correctional institutions and Kingold Boulevard in Snow Hill. The impending construction of the new Greene County Intermediate School on Middle School Road was mentioned, as well as the newly constructed industrial park northeast of Walstonburg between US 264 and US 264 Alternate.

Meeting adjourned at approximately 3:00 p.m.
